EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Yola Ventresca is a partner in our Health Law, Workplace Investigations Professional Regulation, Commercial Litigation and Class Actions groups.

Yola is an accomplished litigator and certified workplace investigator with a track record of successful strategic leadership and service to her clients, the legal profession, and to the wider community. She has more than 15 years of litigation experience with an emphasis on labour, employment and human rights, professional liability/negligence, and health law. She is often sought out for her creative and strategic approach to resolving matters successfully and efficiently.

REPRESENTATIVE WORK

Labour, Employment, Human Rights and Workplace Investigations

Yola's comprehensive knowledge of the Employment Standards Act, 2000, the Occupational Health and Safety Act, the Canada Labour Code, and the Human Rights Code gives her sharp insight into the wide variety of potential complaints and legal issues employers face. Her advice is highly sought after by leaders at major institutions regarding policy drafting and implementation, and significant human resource concerns. She is consistently retained on high crisis and high visibility files, often where media involvement is likely.

As the founder and lead of our Workplace Investigations practice, she uses her specialized expertise to advise clients on a wide variety employment and workplace matters including sexual harassment, hiring and termination decisions, accommodation issues, workplace violence/bullying, employee performance, breach of duty and ethical violations, discrimination and human rights, health and safety issues, wrongful dismissal claims and policy and procedure review.

Having successfully handled numerous professional regulatory and health law files over the years, Yola is well-versed in managing high-stakes, complex and emotionally charged disputes and situations. She understands the need for a delicate, yet also deft touch and uses her keen judgment and empathy to cut through personal and subjective obstacles to complete investigations and reach objective conclusions.

Professional Regulation and Health Law

Yola has a specific expertise in advising regulated health professionals. Yola holds a Master's degree in Health Law from the University of Toronto. With a diverse portfolio of experience, she represents physicians, dentists, pharmacists, registered massage therapists, and other medical professionals on matters involving their respective licensing bodies (for example, the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario (CPSO), the CPSO Discipline Committee, and the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario), the Information and Privacy Commissioner of Ontario, and the Human Rights Tribunal of Ontario, to name a few.

These matters include medical negligence, discipline, privacy, regulated health investigations, patient complaints regarding standard of care, billings issues, prescribing concerns, licensing issues and Quality Assurance Reviews.

Class Actions

Yola's expertise in this area includes both plaintiff and defence class actions, and was an indispensable member of the team of lawyers prosecuting Anderson v St Jude Medical Inc. the first medical device/product liability class action in Canada to proceed to trial.

She has seen class actions through from certification to trial, providing her with exposure to all stages of proceedings, and all facets of this incredibly complex area of law, and knows that class actions require insightful research and innovative interpretation of the key underlying issues. Yola recognizes the complexities and intricacies involved in prosecuting and defending these types of cases, and the importance of access to justice these types of proceedings provide.
